EL PASO, May 20 .- General Carranza, companied by his son-in-law, General Candido Aguilar, has found refuge on the Mexican gunboat Progreso, according to a story printed in "The El Paso Times" to-day, quoting a refugee Carranza official, who arrived here from the South.

Carranza, this information said, dodged through the net of rebels surrounding the besleged Presidential party in the mountains of the State of Puebla and, after a hard ride through tropical jungles, reached the gumboat, the captain and crew of which remained loyal to Carranza when Vera Cruz revolted.

Mexican Threat in Oil Tax Demand

Mexico to force oil producers to make prompt payment of export taxes was revealed to-day in a belated message from the American Embassy at Mexico City to the State Department.

The Department of Finance was quoted as ruling that the taxes for March and April must be paid within five days after May 13 and that no extension would be granted. The department added, however, that the companies would not be expected to comply with a recent decree of the Carranaa government almost doubling the amount, but might pay the March.

The sale of paintings of the Barbiacon school from the collection of the late Henry Barbe, of Lille, France, and other pictures, all owned by the estate of the late John T. Milliken, of St. Louis, which was conducted last evening at the Anderson Galleries, Park Avenue and Fifty ninth Street, brought a total of $6,253,50.

"An Oriental Scene" and an "Evening at the Anderson Galleries, Park at the Companies would not be expected to comply with a recent decree of the Carranaa government almost doubling the amount, but might pay the March.

The largest oil companies have not paid the taxes, but neither their representatives nor the State Department received notification of any punitive action taken by the Mexican authorities.
